MEMORANDUM

SUBJECT: Talking Points for the NSPG: Ambassador E. Rowny (P)

These three points should be made to the President:

1. "Four Pillar" not "Arms Control" Summit. Gorbachev will focus on arms control at Reykjavik as a way of making the year-end Summit exclusively an arms control one.

o This is a repitition of what the Soviets tried -- unsuccessfully -- to do last year.

o The President should work from his own agenda and insist that all four pillars of the US-Soviet relationship be the Summit agenda: regional conflicts, bilateral relations, human rights, and arms control.

2. Arms Control. Gorbachev will concentrate on one issue: INF:

o The President should brace Gorbachev: He agreed in Geneva to move forward on both: 1) a 50% reduction in strategic offensive forces with no strings attached and 2) an interim INF agreement.

o The Soviets have backed away from their commitment on 50% reductions and are publicly shifting the blame to us.

o The President should make it clear that we cannot accept any linkage of a START agreement with ABM Treaty issues.

3. INF. The President should say we can proceed toward an interim INF agreement for 100 warheads on each side in Europe, but that 5 conditions must be met.

(1) Proportionate and concurrent reductions in Asia.

(2) SRINF constraints. In view of the Soviet buildup of these systems in Europe, this is very important, especially to the Germans.

(3) P-II/GLCM mix. We must have P-IIIs in our 100.

- (4) Positive verification to include OSI of destroyed missiles.
- (5) Timing, that is, an interim agreement of indefinite duration until supplanted by an agreement to go to zero.

In sum, the President should be alerted that Gorbachev very much wants an INF deal for his own external and internal political purposes. We are prepared to give him that agreement, but there is a price. Gorbachev must agree at Reykjavik to offensive reductions and to de-link START from Soviet attempts to kill SDI in Defense and Space.
